Islamic State claims California mass killers as followers

(Reuters) Islamic State said on Saturday that the married couple who killed 14 people in a mass shooting in Southern California were its followers, and FBI agents raided a home apparently belonging to a friend of the husband. Islamic State's claim came in an online audio broadcast three days after U.S.-born Syed Rizwan Farook, 28, and his Pakistani wife Tashfeen Malik, 29, opened fire with assault rifles on a holiday party for civil servants in San Bernardino, 60 miles (100 km) east of Los Angeles. The pair, who had left their six-month-old baby daughter with relatives, were killed two hours later in a shootout with police SWAT team members. Federal agents tore through a garage door to search a house in Riverside, a few miles (km) southwest of San Bernardino, on a street where neighbors said Farook once lived. An FBI spokeswoman confirmed agents made a "precautionary tactical entry" while serving a federal search warrant, but she declined to give details. Neighbors named the man who lived there as Enrique Marquez and said he was often seen with Farook. NBC News said the house belongs to a man who authorities believe bought the rifles used in the attack. As investigators probe Wednesday's rampage as an act of terrorism, the White House said President Barack Obama will address the nation on Sunday evening to update the public. If the Dec. 2 mass shooting proves to have been the work of people inspired by Islamist militants, it would be the deadliest such attack in the United States since Sept. 11, 2001.

International News – Significant Events

London police treating Tube station stabbings as 'terrorist incident'

(CNN) A man stabbed three people at an east London Tube station, and authorities say they are investigating the attack as a terrorist incident. The assailant, believed to be 29, was subdued with a stun gun and arrested, London's Metropolitan Police said. One man, 56, suffered serious injuries that were not considered life-threatening, police said. Two others suffered minor injuries in the attack Saturday night. Police are looking into reports that the suspect yelled "This is for Syria" during the attack, said Chioma Dijeh, a spokeswoman for Metropolitan Police. "We are treating this as a terrorist incident," said Cmdr. Richard Walton, head of the Met's Counter Terrorism Command. "I would urge the public to remain calm, but alert and vigilant. The threat from terrorism remains at severe, which means that a terrorist attack is highly likely."

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

An approaching storm system will bring gusty south winds along with rain and mountain snow to Northwest California tonight. The weather pattern will remain wet and unsettled through next week.

Medford Weather:

A front moving through the area today will produce rain and snow in the forecast area. A series of storms is expected over the next several days as a very strong Central Pacific Jetstream dips into the forecast area.

Reno Weather:

A weak disturbance will provide light rain and snow north of Interstate 80 through early afternoon. Gusty winds are also expected today before diminishing through the afternoon. The storm track retreats into the Pacific Northwest by early next week with above average temperatures. Unsettled weather with colder temperatures returns by the latter half of next week.

San Francisco Weather:

Rain will spread across much of the San Francisco Bay Area this morning. Rainfall amounts will mostly be light. Dry and mild weather is forecast from late today through Tuesday night. The next Pacific weather system will likely bring heavier and more widespread rain to the region from Wednesday through Thursday night. Showers may linger into Friday. Another system may impact the region next weekend.

WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

A weak weather system today will be followed by much wetter and snowier storms Wednesday and Thursday and another next weekend.

Hanford Weather:

A storm moving north of our area today will bring increased clouds along with a few light showers possible across Merced and Mariposa Counties today. Dry and mild conditions are expected Monday through Wednesday then a cold storm system will move through the region on Thursday and Friday bringing precipitation and gusty winds.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Continued offshore flow and a building ridge aloft will support warm and dry conditions through mid-week. A trough of low pressure is expected to move southward along the west coast Thursday and support the possibility of rain and mountain snow Thursday, Friday and lingering to the north of Point Conception into Saturday. Cooler temperatures and increased cloudiness may last into the weekend.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

Warm and dry weather is expected through the middle of next week, then cooler for late next week with slight chances of showers and strong gusty west winds becoming cool and drier Saturday.

Southeast California Weather:

Above normal temperatures will persist across the region through much of the week as high pressure remains in control of the weather.
